ACQ-16 Acquisition Interface Unit - Type 2

The ACQ-16 is part of the Life Science Suite, and is designed specifically to interface to the Ponemah Physiology Platform software. The ACQ-16 is a cost effective choice for interfacing to pre-conditioned, high-level signals, when the required number of channels does not exceed sixteen.

The slim line chassis can be free standing on a table or mounted in a standard 19" laboratory rack. The ACQ-16 interfaces to the computer by the standard parallel port. Up to sixteen channels can be simultaneously acquired. The inputs can be configured to accommodate signals in the range of +/-2.5, +/- 5 and +/-10 volts.
