DeskFab Programmer

The QuickLogic Programmer Kit is a state-of-the-art programming system, offering users the capability of programming all QuickLogic ESPs, FPGAs. QuickLogic offers programming flexibility and speed via its DeskFab Programming Unit and universal adapters. This programmer supports programming for up to 32 devices at one time. The Programmer Interface translates the results of the Automatic Place Route process into the patterns required to program pASIC® devices. These are transmitted over an RS-232 link to the programmer.

Highlights of DeskFAB Programmer

- Development tools with QuickPRO™ stand alone software package used for programming
- DeskFab Programmer supports all QuickLogic devices, including ESPs and FPGAs
- DeskFab Programmer can be "ganged" in chains of up to 8 for volume programming. Multi-site 4-socket adapters allow you to program up to 32 devices simultaneously
- Supports Windows PC platforms, including Windows 95, Windows NT, and Windows 2000
- The DeskFab Programmer Kit comes standard with all hardware and software necessary to setup a stand alone programming station

In order to program QuickLogic devices with the DeskFAB programmer, you will need to download QuickPRO™ software.
